Red China cancels U.S. talks

(C) 1969 New York Times News Service
WASHINGTON — Communist China canceled a long awaited meeting in Warsaw with the United States Tuesday just 48 hours before it was to take place.

Secretary of State William P. Rogers, expressing his disappointment at the abrupt Chinese move, disclosed that the Nixon Administration had intended to make specific "constructive" proposals at the meeting toward improving relations.

The Chinese charged that the new administration, by granting political asylum two weeks ago to a high ranking diplomat who defected, had merely "inherited the mantle of the preceding U.S. Government in flagrantly making itself the enemy of the 700 million Chinese people."

U.S. officials considered the defection a pretext, following on the more basic judgment that the two sides were still too widely separated in their attitudes toward the other to make a new meeting worthwhile.

Rogers, in a statement distributed by the State Department, indicated that the U.S. had planned to accept Peking's suggestion that the two countries discuss the conclusion of an agreement setting forth principles of peaceful coexistence.

Secondly, the administration intended to renew previous offers to exchange newsmen, scholars, scientists and scientific information.

Sirhan placed on gun range

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sirhan Bishara Sirhan was identified from the witness stand Tuesday as having engaged in rapid fire practice on a gun club range only hours before the assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy.

"He came up to me and said I want the best box of shells you have and I want some that will not misfire," said Everett C. Buckner, rangemaster at the club.

Buckner said Sirhan signed the practice roster at the club that day. Superior Court Judge Herbert V. Walker asked: "You see the man who signed it?"

"Sirhan Sirhan, the fellow over there," Buckner replied, pointing at the defendant.

Without explanation, Communist border guards closed the main highway from West Germany to Berlin for almost two hours Tuesday and this backlog of passenger vehicles from West Berlin to the Babelsberg checkpoint was one of the results.

The action appeared to be a warmup for what West Germany can expect if presidential election is held in West Berlin March 5 despite Communist protests. (UPI Cablephoto)

East Germans close Autobahn

Berlin situation worsens

BERLIN (AP) — A blasting job by East German military engineers on West Berlin's border threatens to complicate the already restricted land travel between this isolated city and West Germany during the next two weeks.

That's an eventful period encompassing the flying visit of President Nixon to West Berlin Feb. 27 and the eve of the meeting of West Germany's National Assembly here March 5 to elect a successor to President Heinrich Lübke.

Police said the East German army plans slow-motion demolition, starting today, of the brick base of a Soviet war memorial. The memorial is on a knoll overlooking the autobahn which spans 110 miles of Communist territory to link West Berlin with West Germany at Helmstedt. A Soviet T34 tank long planted atop the base was removed last week.

The brick structure, about 20 feet long and 10 feet high, looks as if it could be disposed of in a single day, but the police said they were told the explosions they were to be strung out over Feb. 19, 21, 25, 27 and March 4. The East Germans apparently plan eventually to reroute the highway entrance.

West Berliners, however, considered that the aim was political. An authoritative German source commented: "You know what has been said, but you know what we all think."

East German guards shut down the processing of outbound traffic from West Berlin for two hours Tuesday and Western officers at all other East-West crossing points reported long delays.

Sharpened Communist controls included extended searches of some vehicles and their occupants at border garages.

But truck drivers who got through said the highway was in no worse shape than those in West Germany.

Jewish officer kills Arab

ZURICH, Switzerland (AP) — Arab commandos, striking from behind a runway snowbank, riddled an Israeli El Al jetliner with submachinegun fire as it was taxiing for a takeoff Tuesday night. Six persons on the plane were wounded and an Arab raider was shot dead in a counterblow.

The Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, an Arab guerrilla group based in Jordan, claimed "full responsibility" for the attack which was carried out by three men and a woman.

This is the same guerrilla organization that took credit for the shooting attack on an El Al airliner at Athens airport last December and the hijacking of an El Al plane over the Mediterranean last summer.

Swiss police said one of the raiders was killed by an Israeli security officer who slipped off the stricken Boeing 720 and caught the commandos by surprise. Three other attackers, including a girl, were arrested by airport guards in a swift counterattack.

Among the 17 passengers and 10 crewmen aboard the Israeli plane bound for Tel Aviv was Gideon Rafael, director general of the Israeli Foreign Office. He was unhurt.

Six persons aboard the aircraft were wounded, however, two seriously. One was a trainee pilot shot through the chest.

In Amman, the Front for the Liberation of Palestine, issued a communique contending that the attack was a reprisal for "brutality and torture" committed by Israeli authorities against Arab civilians in occupied territory.

The communique, apparently prepared before the attack was carried out, said the plane had been "destroyed." It identified members of the raiding party, including the girl, a 25-year-old teacher from Gaza.

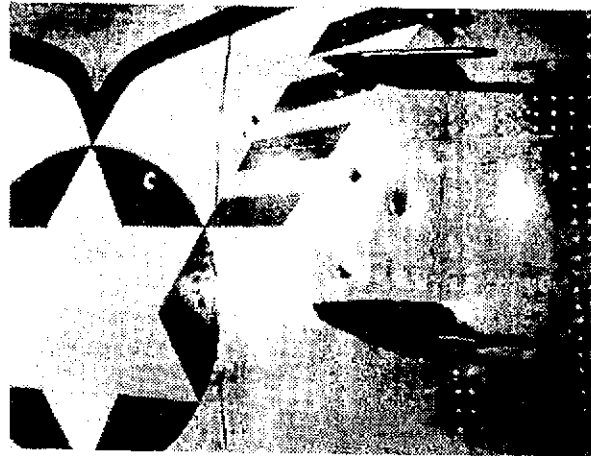

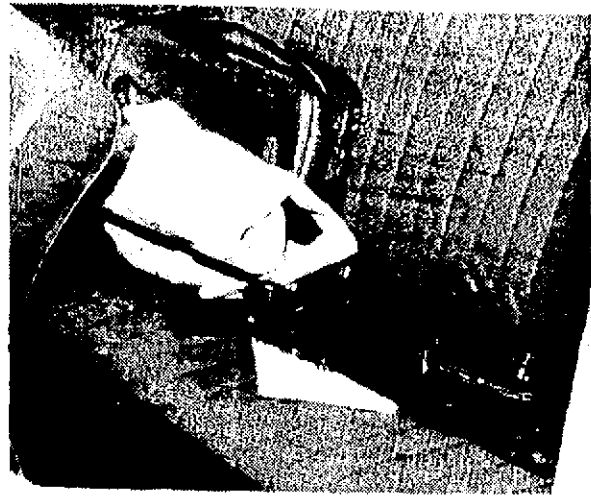

The raiders struck their ambush as the jetliner taxied to the main runway. When it was about 60 yards away, they opened up with submachinegun fire, aiming chiefly at the cockpit. The plane came to a halt.

About 50 bullets pierced the airliner. Hand grenades and at least one bomb also were hurled at the plane but failed to go off.

A man, later identified as an Israeli security officer, slipped off the plane during the attack and ran for the attackers. He shot one of the guerrillas in the head.

Airport guards, alerted by radio from the stricken airplane's cockpit, closed in on the guerrillas and took the other three into custody.

In Jerusalem, Israeli Foreign Minister Aba Eban said the Zurich attack "demonstrated the murderous characteristics" of the Arab guerrilla organizations.

Arms, top, lying in the back seat of an auto were used to attack an Israeli airliner in Zurich, Switzerland, Tuesday. The holes in the airliner are shown at bottom. (UPI Telephoto)

School closed in Harrisburg

HARRISBURG (AP) — All of Harrisburg's 18 public schools were closed Tuesday for a "cooling off" of racial tempers which flared on several fronts. School authorities said principals spent much of their time Monday meeting in their respective auditoriums with Negro students demanding more black teachers and the mandatory teaching of Negro history.

Dr. Glenn C. Parker, city superintendent of schools, said the decision for Tuesday's holiday was made at a four-hour conference Monday night of district administrators, staff and school directors.

Draft lottery possible

(C) 1969 New York Times News Service
WASHINGTON — Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird said Tuesday that the Nixon Administration may propose a lottery system to select draftees even while the Vietnam War continues.

One of the first bills the administration plans to send Congress, Laird said, will be one "to do away with inequities that presently exist in our Selective Service Act."

That, together with a thorough overhaul of the military pay system, he said, are vital first steps if the country is to move away from reliance on the draft.

A short-term study on ways to reduce reliance on the draft is tied to a budget review that is expected to be completed by mid-March, the secretary told a Pentagon news conference.

The review is under the direction of Deputy Defense Secretary David Packard, who also took part in the news conference.

Lenten Guideposts series begins

Football star uses confidence

(EDITOR'S NOTE — This is one of a series of 40 stories people will tell from incidents in their own lives during the Lenten season, which begins today, Ash Wednesday. "Lenten Guideposts" now begins its 19th year of relating religion to living on a daily basis).

BY BART STARR

Quarterback, Green Bay Packers
In case you are not a sports fan, the Green Bay Packers are a professional football team. They are one of the fabled teams of the game with a history of excellence going back to 1919.

When my wife, Cherry, and I came up from the University of Alabama in 1956, all eager and dazzled by the prospects of my being quarterback on so illustrious a team, the Green Bay Packers had fallen upon some dismal days, but the season of 1958 was absolutely the bottom. Out of 12 games, we tied one game and won — just one. Ten losses: sheer disaster.

In December our coach resigned. The danger signals were up for me and I knew it. I hadn't exactly sparked out there on the field.

And then the lightning struck! We were a squeamish group who gathered to meet our new coach and general manager that day in 1959.

"Gentlemen," Coach Vince Lombardi said that day. "We're going to have a football team. We are going to win some games. Do you know why?"

"Because you are going to have confidence in me and my system. By being alert you are going to have confidence in me and my system. By being alert you are going to make fewer mistakes than your opponents. By working harder you are going to out-execute, out-block, out-tackle every team that comes your way."

As the coach talked, you could see the guys straightening up to take a closer look at this intense man.

"But first of all," he went on, "you are going to prepare yourself up here." He put his finger to his temple.

"You can't win if you're not ready to win mentally. Therefore, I expect you to think about only three things while you are part of this organization: your family, your religion and the Green Bay Packers."

I for one walked out of that meeting feeling 10 feet tall — and I hadn't played a lick for him!

All of us caught his enthusiasm. Just as he said we would, we started working harder on the field.

We started our pre-season games. The tempo rose. Suddenly we won a game and our spirits soared. They kept on soaring. By the end of the 1959 season, we had won seven out of 12 games with virtually the same players who had lost 10 games the year before.

In 1960 we won a division title, then in 1961 a World title, and after that the sky always seemed to be our limit.

His genius

How had Coach Lombardi accomplished these things?

You can say, of course, that he did it with his particular genius. But that's not an explanation.

Having played for him for 10 seasons, I think I have reason to say that his "genius" consists of some very simple things. These are ideas available to all of us and useful in any undertaking if we but have the mental toughness to weld them together into a way of living.

Coach Lombardi doesn't make a secret of these principles. Wherever he is they come out in the way he lives his own life and in the way he thinks.

I can never forget, nor will I ever stop being grateful for, what Coach Lombardi did for me. As I look back to that first question mark of a year under him, I am quite sure he had never seen a three-year veteran who knew less than I did. But he brought something in me that changed my career and my life. Confidence.

Alert and ready

Mind you, I was always sure of my talent. I never really doubted that I could play good football, but I lacked the kind of confidence that Coach Lombardi himself had, the kind that oozes out to others.

A quarterback is in a position of command; it is he who calls the plays. He must be alert and ready to adjust to the sudden and the unexpected.

Lombardi started building my confidence by first giving me the enthusiasm to work harder. He spent a lot of time just talking to me, examining the "hows" and "whys" of the game. Then he began to bear down on my thinking.

"Treat mistakes with a vengeance!" he'd pound at me. "Don't brood over them, profit from them. If you think about mistakes, you'll make more mistakes. Just come back wiser and harder."

Through it all, the coach repeated his theory that winning is a habit. "It's contagious," he'd say, "and so is losing."

Sincere and believing

Vince Lombardi is a sincere and believing man who goes to church every day of the week, who seldom talks in religious tones, but whose religion is as natural and as integral a part of him as are the prayers we say together before and after every Packer game.

Those prayers are something else I have learned from Coach Lombardi's example.

After the week's preparations are over, after the sweat of the practice field and after the groggy hours examining movies and of note-making and of drawing diagrams, after all these things have been completed, the Lord's Prayer said in unison becomes a unifying force pulling all our efforts together.

And I have yet to come up from my knees without feeling personally that we were going to do all the things that Coach Lombardi had prepared us to do.

Tank car explosion fatal

CRETE, Neb. (AP)—A dense cloud of deadly ammonia fumes from a ruptured railroad tank car drifted through this sleeping town before dawn Tuesday, leaving eight persons dead and 11 hospitalized.

"I opened the front door and I couldn't see anything," said Mrs. Mamie Littler, 60, one of the hundreds of Crete residents hurriedly evacuated from the area. "The gas just about knocked me backwards."

Anhydrous ammonia gas as thick as fog enveloped the western section of this town of 3,500 after several cars of a Burlington Railroad freight train derailed and struck a tank car parked on a siding. The tank car exploded with a blinding flash.

"This is it," said Mayor George Plessman. "It is a real tragedy."

State police and volunteer firemen wearing gas masks sealed off the area, then went from door-to-door to herd residents through the fog to safety.

The derailment and explosion came at 6:30 a.m. as this town was waking up.

Mrs. Elmer Fritz said she was awakened by "an explosion and flash of light."

"I thought it was a storm," she said later, "and went to the children's room to check on them. Then I opened the front door and was driven back by the ammonia fumes."

"Then I put wet washcloths over the children's faces and ran with them back to a neighbor's house where we called police."

Mrs. Helen Meyers said she looked out her bedroom window following the explosion. "I saw what appeared to be a fog rolling down the road."

Les Parks, 40, utility worker and volunteer fireman, donned a gas mask and walked through the area. Visibility was virtually zero, he said.

Among the dead were Ron Hatchett, 21, of Chicago, Ill., a starting tackle on the Doane College football team; his daughter, Gloria Jean, 4; Mr. and Mrs. Louis Erdman, both in their 60s; Lyle Safranek, 23, all of Crete.

The other three dead were not identified. The railroad said they were unauthorized transients on the 58-car train.

Most of the victims died from chemical burns. One of the unidentified men was killed by the explosion, which disintegrated the tank car. Huge hunks of steel from the car were hurled into yards on either side of the railroad right-of-way.

Ackerman removed from post

NEW YORK (AP)—Martin Ackerman has been removed as president of LIN Broadcasting Corp., a post he held for five weeks.

The action was taken Monday by the LIN board of directors. The directors named Joel M. Thorpe as president and chief executive officer to succeed Ackerman.

Ackerman and one other LIN director voted against Ackerman's removal. Ackerman said, however, "all the adverse publicity convinced them that I was more of a detriment to LIN than a help."

Detailed autopsy awaited by Navy

(C) 1969 New York Times News Service
LONG BEACH, Calif. — Navy doctors Tuesday were pressing their investigation into the exact cause of the death of Aquanaut Berry L. Cannon.

Cannon died of apparent heart failure early Monday while working 600 feet down on the ocean floor during the first day of the Navy's Project Sea Lab 3.

Until the Navy knows more about what led to the death of the 33-year-old civilian electronics engineer from Panama City, Fla., the 60-day man-in-the-sea experiment has been suspended. It was to have been the United States' deepest and most ambitious attempt at living on the sea floor.

The preliminary findings in an autopsy on Cannon's body at San Diego Naval Hospital told doctors nothing further about the death. Lieut. Cmdr. John C. Dewey, the Sealab public affairs officer, said here. "All they know is that his heart stopped," Dewey said.

Three-level probe planned into schools' racial violence

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Plans were announced Tuesday for a combined state, city and county investigation into violence in Pittsburgh's racially mixed schools.

Mayor Joseph M. Barr and Dist. Atty. Robert W. Duggan announced the investigation only hours after fighting between black and white pupils erupted for the second day in a row at Gladstone High School.

Two boys were knifed during the melee, but weren't seriously hurt. Even after the fighting broke up, gangs of unruly

MacPhail kin killed in crash

READING, Pa. (AP)—A flaming auto crash Tuesday killed Leland S. MacPhail III, 27, son and grandson of the baseball MacPhails.

Young MacPhail recently was appointed general manager of the Philadelphia Phillies' Eastern League baseball farm team here.

Police said MacPhail's small foreign car crashed into another car that had gone out of control on an expressway. The impact ruptured the fuel tank in MacPhail's auto and sent a sheet of flaming gasoline over it.

"MacPhail never had a chance," said Police Chief John P. Horine of Exeter Township.

Police said the other driver, Gary Frick, 23, of Pottstown, Pa., escaped with minor injuries.

The car was incinerated and it was several hours before MacPhail's body was identified. In the meantime, his wife, Carol, had telephoned police to report him overdue from a business meeting.

MacPhail's father, Lee MacPhail, is executive vice president and general manager of the New York Yankees. He is in a hospital in White Plains, N. Y., recovering from a recent heart attack.

The victim's grandfather, Larry MacPhail, was former general manager and president of the Yankees, Cincinnati Reds and the old Brooklyn Dodgers.

House panel changes name

WASHINGTON — The House voted Tuesday to give its controversial Un-American Activities Committee a new name and, some claimed, a chance to carve a new public image.

Renamed the House Internal Security Committee, the panel thus abandoned its old, familiar initials, H.U.A.C., and acquired new ones — H.I.S.C.

"A rose by any other name..." Longtime critics of the committee said as they sought to block the name change, in hopes of abolishing the committee entirely.

They failed, by a vote of 262 to 123. But while losing, critics made their best showing in nearly 20 years of attempts.

In previous years, opponents failed to muster more than 90 votes for abolition.

Sniffing at claims that a name change would improve the committee, Rep. Philip Burton, D-Cal., reminded colleagues of an old Al Capp comic strip in which "the Dogpatch city council met to works to the Ozark perfume change the name of the skunk factory."

Extradition papers missing

ALBANY, N.Y. — Extradition papers covering a Pike County murder suspect are apparently lost in the mail somewhere between Harrisburg and Albany.

According to George Ebner, assistant press secretary to Pennsylvania Gov. Raymond Shafer, the governor has agreed to the extradition of James M. Olenick, Port Jervis, and the papers were mailed Feb. 7.

However, Tuesday, Robert Douglas, counsel to New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, said the papers have not been received in the New York State capitol.

Olenick, 17, is charged with the stabbing death of Robert Ziepie, Dec. 28 in the victim's vacation home on Hemlock Farms in Blooming Grove Township. Ziepie was a school teacher in Cambria Heights, Queens, N.Y.

Ebner said the papers, which are necessary before Olenick can be returned to Pennsylvania from the Orange County, N.Y., jail, were sent special delivery.

Tuesday, in addition to Douglas, Michael Whiteman, an aide in charge of extradition requests in New York, said the papers had not been received in Albany.

Ebner said he was investigating the matter from his end in Harrisburg to attempt to locate the missing documents.

In extradition proceedings, the governor in the state seeking the return of a defendant, must make an official request to the governor of the state in which the defendant is being held.

Lenten services begin

SOUTH STERLING — Union Lenten services for the congregations of the Newfoundland Moravian Church, and Hemlock Grove, South Sterling and LaAnna United Methodist Churches will begin today at 8 p.m. at the Hemlock Grove Church, Greentown.

Speaker for the first service will be the Rev. Thor Harberg, Director of Christian Education for the Northern Province, Moravian Church in America.

The second service of the series will be held on Feb. 25, at the South Sterling United Methodist Church with Msgr. Joseph Quinn, Tolyhanna, as speaker.

On March 5, at the Newfoundland Moravian Church, Dr. Lawrence Beers, of the Lackawanna County Council will speak, and the Rev. Edwin Simons, of Montdale United Methodist Church will be the speaker on March 12 at Hemlock Grove.

The Rev. William Noble, Gouldsboro-Daleville minister, will bring the Lenten message on March 19 at South Sterling, and the final service on March 26 will be at the Moravian Church with the Rev. Stuart Thody, pastor of Providence United Methodist Church, Scranton, as the speaker.

Holy Week services of the two denominations will be held in their own churches. The Moravians will have nightly Passion Week services at 7:30 p.m. with the reading from the New Passion Week Manual, which is designed to be more easily read than the Manual formerly used. Holy Communion will be held at the Good Friday service at 2 p.m.

The Maundy Thursday service will be held for the Methodists on April 3 at the LaAnna Church at 7:30 p.m., with Dr. Alfred F. Crayton, Wilkes-Barre District Superintendent, as the guest preacher.

Salem fights Wayne plan; seeks single school unit

By Gil Murray
Record News Editor
HONESDALE — The long fight to reorganize the public schools in Wayne County is facing another legal barrier.

The Salem Township School Board has filed an appeal to the State Board of Education's ruling that the 22 school districts in the county be reduced to three.

The Salem board has filed an appeal in the county's court of common pleas asking that a ruling be overturned and the 22 districts be reorganized into a single county unit.

The action was filed Feb. 7 against the state board. Judge James Rathford has not set a hearing on the appeal, but is expected to do so in the near future.

The state board, which received a copy of the action Monday, is forwarding all its records in the case to the court and is expected to defend its decision approving three school districts.

John Sutton, county superintendent of schools, said Tuesday that if a decision is reached by the court by April, the districts could be reorganized by July 1, and the three reorganized districts could be in operation next year.

Sutton said, however, if the ruling is delayed beyond May 1, no reorganization will be possible during the 1969-70 school year.

The Salem appeal, which was filed by Robert J. Conway, board solicitor, claims that the state board ruling approving three districts was "capricious, arbitrary and contrary to law."

The appeal further claims that the student population in the proposed districts is considerably under the minimum 4,000 figure contained in the state's reorganization law.

Attempts to reorganize the schools in the county have been slowed by a number of legal steps and decisions aimed at amending reorganization plans.

Originally, the county school board submitted a plan calling for the creation of three units. The state board overruled this proposal and ordered the creation of a single county unit.

This was appealed by several school districts in the county, and the state board reversed itself and approved the three units.

Now, Salem is taking the position which the state board favored in its original decision.

Sutton said reorganization in Wayne County will primarily affect administration. He said little or no change will be made to the present educational arrangement.

After reorganization, Sutton said, students will attend the same schools they are now attending.

When asked what plan of reorganization he favored, a single unit or three districts, Sutton said:

"I'm for reorganization." He said the uncertainty which has surrounded the effort to realign the school districts has resulted in a slow-down of progress in the county.

"School boards have been hesitant in making decisions because they do not know what reorganization will mean. Once we are reorganized, everyone will know what to expect in the future," Sutton said.

It was also learned that the Manchester Township School Board had considered appealing the reorganization decision but was advised not to by its solicitor.

Children from Manchester presently attend school in Hancock, N.Y., and the Manchester board favors that arrangement. The board fears that this arrangement could be affected by reorganization.

Sutton said this is unlikely, because both Wayne County and Hancock benefit from the arrangement.

He pointed out that Hancock only charges $250 in tuition for each student, and it cost about $600 a year to educate a student in a Wayne County school.

In addition, Wayne students attending Hancock schools represent about 25 per cent of that district's population. Further, New York State reimburses Hancock for students no matter where they live.

In effect, New York is subsidizing the students from Pennsylvania attending schools in Hancock and Deposit, which is also in New York.

Sutton also revealed that a survey is now underway to determine sentiment in the county for a vocational-technical high school.

To a large degree the possibility of a Wayne County vo-tech school is tied to reorganization, Sutton said that under the three-unit arrangement, Wayne County could qualify as an attendance area for a vo-tech district.

However, under provisions of the law, if a single district is created in the county, then the Wayne County School Board would be forced to join with another, out-of-the-county, school district to create a vo-tech attendance area.

Sutton said this would be "impossible" because of the transportation problems involved.

He pointed out that the county covers 600 square miles and it is more than 60 miles long.

PTA honors Portland principal

PORTLAND — A retiring Portland Elementary School teacher and principal was surprised with a "This is Your Life" program during a Parent Teacher's Assn. meeting in the school Monday night.

The PTA paid the salute to Ruth Williams.

Mrs. Edith Emery was master of ceremonies and William Brodt introduced Miss Williams.

Others participating in the program were Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Butz of Bethlehem; Mrs. Delia Breisch, Easton; Mr. and Mrs. Edward P. ## FFA Week observed locally

STROUDSBURG — Future Farmers of America members in Monroe and Northampton County are joining in the observation of National FFA Week which continues through this week.

Pocono Chapter from Pocono Mountain School District and Bangor Chapter from Bangor Area Schools will be participating in a regional display contest with other chapters from Carbon, Luzerne and Lackawanna counties.

Each chapter will conduct local activities, noting past accomplishments and advancing plans for future projects and events.

Displays will be constructed by the members relating various agricultural ideas in use such as production agriculture, conservation, forestry, recreation and related fields, all basically carrying the national theme "FFA - an opportunity for youth".

The Pocono Record will publish a picture-page in Friday's issue, highlighting the FFA activities in the area.

Gilpin returns

NEWFOUNDLAND — Leonard W. Gilpin, Jr., who has been hospitalized at Mercy Hospital, Scranton, has returned home for convalescence following surgery.

Child aid totals 63 in Pike

MILFORD — A total of 63 children in Pike County received the services of the Child Welfare Agency during 1968, according to an annual report released this week by Mrs. Glee Dorvand, child welfare administrator.

The report was presented to the Pike County commissioners Monday.

The statistical report showed that 63 requests were received for children's service. There were 71 dispositions for when service to children terminated.

There were 43 children who received service in their homes and seven children were served in foster homes.

The report showed that there are only two unmarried mothers in Pike County.

Smoke rings in tax circles

If Gov. Raymond Shafer's proposed $2.52 billion budget is to become a reality during the next fiscal year, it is obvious that a miracle must be in the making.

It appears as if the suggestion to impose an earned income tax on residents of the Keystone State is doomed, although Shafer hasn't given up the ghost.

Pennsylvania's governor is planning area visits to bring his tax proposal directly to the people in an attempt to outweigh the balance of both parties in the Legislature.

However, it is hard to contemplate that still another form of taxation will be successful in the proposed record budget. The second doubtful venture is a new three per cent tax on cigarettes, a commodity that under the best of conditions is over taxed.

Shafer has proposed this additional tax even though 40 of the 50 states show a decrease in cigarette tax revenue. The revenue is down simply because the sale of cigarettes is down, due to their possible link with cancer.

The tobacco industry feels that tobacco consumption may be up somewhat nationally, but per capita cigarette smoking is down.

A belief by the state Budget Bureau that cigarette tax income will increase during the next fiscal year from $172.9 to $178 million is difficult to believe in the face of anti-cigarette advertising sweeping the nation.

The entire tax proposal presented to the Legislature recently is in danger. Residents of Pennsylvania are sick and tired of paying out by increasing amounts each year.

Even those who travel in government circles regularly are calling for economy in Harrisburg.

One of those crying in the loudest voice is Raymond Broderick, the lieutenant governor, or number two man in charge.

Lent begins today

Christians around the world today will open the holy season of Lent with the celebration of Ash Wednesday.

Blessed ashes will be distributed to all Roman Catholic Churches, while many Protestant churches will feature Holy Communion services.

Lent will continue for six weeks and end with Easter Sunday.

During this time millions of Christians of all faiths will receive the opportunity to attend special services during the week as well as on Sundays.

This holy season will also afford Christians an opportunity to reflect their past and chart a future course during religious meditations made available during the course of various services and in homes of those who frequent Lenten worship.

The Lenten season is greeted with special attention this year because of the war-like conduct of the world in general at the present time. One of the biggest threats of global war currently exists in the Holy Land, where the true feeling of religion first emerged.

A global celebration of Lent could at least curtail the threat of war and maybe even improve the cause of peace.

Forgery major problem

Pharmacist key figure in halt of drugs

EDITOR'S NOTE — This is the fifth in a series of articles dealing with the seriousness of the narcotics problem in Monroe County. The reports of law, medical and ministerial officials will cover the past, present and future of drug traffic in the area.

By JAMES RILEY
Pocono Record Editor

STROUDSBURG — The pharmacist at the local drug store has been put squarely on the spot by the growing traffic of narcotics in Monroe County.

Instead of playing the role of pharmacist alone, he suddenly finds himself a combination detective, mind reader and adviser, in addition to his fulltime position.

"Obtaining and using drugs is an increasing problem in the Pocono Mountains and make no mistake about it," the authority for this statement is Robert Craft, past president of the Carbon, Monroe, Pike Pharmaceutical Assn. and pharmacist at LeBar's Drug Store, Stroudsburg.

Craft pointed out that the druggist today must be careful what drug he sells and to whom. He must also be careful in filling prescriptions ordered by doctors.

Among the current headaches suffered by pharmacists are counterfeit prescription blanks, which have become a regular business of late. Some fly-by-night printing organizations even reprint the stolen blanks.

Craft reports that in recent years many counterfeit prescription blanks have been discovered by area pharmacists. In fact, in recent weeks prescription blanks have been stolen from the offices of Dr. Elmo J. Lilli and Dr. Ramon B. Molina, in Stroudsburg, and Dr. Francis J. Cinelli, Bangor.

Pharmacists in the Easton, Allentown and Bethlehem areas have reported people trying to forge the Molina-Lilli blanks, as have pharmacists in Scranton and Newfoundland.

Craft said that people trying to forge prescriptions like to arrive at the store near closing time, feeling that the druggist won't take as much time to examine the order because he will be in a hurry to get home.

However, it was pointed out that they will not stand still for a delay. The least bit of an irregularity in filling a prescription will send the would-be customer hurrying from the store.

Craft said there was a wave of people illegally seeking drugs last summer and at present it is periodic. However, some teenagers from as far away as Bethlehem have been arrested after obtaining drugs in the Stroudsburgs.

Many of the forged requests are for a drug known as dilaudid, a morphine derivative.

However, Craft revealed that much of the difficulty arising over the sale of drugs today stems from the fact that adults and teenagers alike request by brand names drugs with high narcotic content.

Cough syrups with heavy narcotic content are high on the list, as are other drugs, including cold remedies and products manufactured for use by individuals wishing to fight off the feeling of sleep.

As Craft said, a mixture of one cold remedy and a bottle of cough syrup and "away you go."

"These kids know the products by name and they know what they are looking for," Craft explained.

He also pointed out that those seeking drugs illegally are equally divided among the sexes. "There are as many girls as boys," Craft revealed.

Craft explained that each prescription blank must have a correct name and address and that pharmacists check when in doubt. Other measuring devices used when dispensing drugs are appearance of the individual, quantity and type of drug requested and the apparent mental and physical condition of the individual.

"Of course we are bothered much more during the summer, but every once in a while we catch a local youngster trying to make a purchase. But, the real problem this time of year is caused by teenagers from outside the Stroudsburgs, who we don't recognize, anxious to obtain drugs."

"Those obtaining drugs aren't always the ones to use them. These young people may be making sales, as they often do with prescription blanks," Craft said.

"The drug problem is the easiest thing to get into and the hardest to get out of," Craft concluded.

Style necessary

(C) 1969 New York Times News Service

WASHINGTON — All new presidents need to establish their own style in the White House, to put their personal stamp on an office that various predecessors have shaped to other ideas and circumstances.

Presidents seldom are entirely free to do this, of course. It was vital for Lyndon Johnson, in November, 1963, to address and reassure congress and the nation. But it would make little sense for Richard Nixon to give a state of the union address now, when his legislative program is not fully developed, his first budget is essentially Johnson's last and his major foreign problem — Vietnam — is in protracted negotiation.

If a big setpiece speech is temporarily of small use to Nixon, however, there are other means by which he can make an early impact on his office and on the American imagination. One way in which he obviously has sought to do so is by carefully cultivating the idea that he is organizing the White House to deal with foreign and domestic problems in an orderly, efficient way.

Sharp contrast

Thus, there now is not only a reconstituted national security council on something near the Eisenhower model, in sharp contrast to the highly ad hoc "excom" group favored by President John F. Kennedy and the tightly concentrated "Tuesday lunch" system of President Johnson; there also is a new urban council for similarly methodical consideration of domestic affairs.

This not only provides the needed new look for the Nixon White House; it also awakens welcome echoes of the orderly (if sometimes ponderous) Eisenhower administration, and thus of the less turbulent years over which the general and his associates presided. And since Nixon's opportunities for action are still circumscribed by the budget and the negotiations he inherited, all that organizing provides the sense of motion that might otherwise be lacking.

This is not to suggest that the new president's display of organizational sufficiency is in any way spurious or merely "imagery"; in fact, the purposes of public impact served so far have been useful in getting Nixon off to a good start.

Moreover, careful study and organization obviously are congenial to Nixon, a renowned "grind" in his student days and a man still accustomed to doing his homework, as well as to looking before he leaps. In foreign affairs, at least, formal organization is equally congenial to the methods and talents of Henry Kissinger, Nixon's White House assistant in this field.

In fact, however, no matter how much "machinery" is clanking away in the White House basement, this administration, like any other, surely will have officials of particular access to and influence on the President; and in the long run he is likely to make the decisions only he can make quite as much in consort with these persons, and out of his own ideas and circumstances, as because of what his formal councils may conclude.

Nixon's overseas expedition next week, for instance, appears to be a little out of his administration's newly established character. It obviously is a good thing to display some renewed sympathy for Europe after the years of American concentration on Vietnam. Nixon may also be able to drum up a bit more interest in NATO and ease the pains of those aggrieved by the nonproliferation treaty.

But in London, Prime Minister Wilson is hungry for all sorts of political and economic help. De Gaulle may want some backing for the franc and he certainly wants Nixon's collaboration in his middle east peace-making efforts; yet he shows no signs of modifying his NATO or common market stands.

Ideal movie set

BUENOS AIRES — My native guide came into the hotel dining room this morning and said, brightly, "Today I have a special treat for you...we are going to visit the cemetery...isn't that wonderful?"

Considering my headache from doing research on Buenos Aires night life the night before, the cemetery sounded like just the place. I, therefore, made no objection, save a request for aspirin, and shortly we arrived at La Recoleta — this city's answer to Hollywood's Forest Lawn.

As a matter of fact, La Recoleta is so spooky it would make an ideal movie set — for epics with titles such as "The Mummy's Revenge" or "San of Wolfman."

"Here, no one is buried under the ground," the guide said. "Everyone is entombed above it, in vaults. Not everyone who was rich and famous in Argentina is buried here, but, to be buried here, one must have been rich and famous. Does that make sense?" (It made as much sense as anything else at 10 a.m.)

Education, welfare programs

By GENE S. GOLDBERG
Ottaway News Service
Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — New York's Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller came to the Capitol City last week with a sweeping proposal for federal financing of educational and welfare programs.

And although he was greeted warmly by the Nixon Administration — including an hour-long conversation with the president himself — observers here were left with the feeling that everyone had merely listened politely as the Republican governor made his pitch.

Rockefeller's meeting with Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Robert Finch was a good example of this lackluster response to the governor's proposal that the federal government directly share vast sums of tax revenues with state and local authorities.

Following the 45-minute talk between Rocky and Finch — which was also attended by Florida's Republican Gov. Claude Kirk, who had an appointment with Finch at about the same time and sat in — Rockefeller told waiting reporters that the meeting had gone well.

"We're all thinking in the same direction," he said.

But if Rockefeller and Finch were thinking in the same direction, one of them needs a new compass.

After the New York governor had departed, Finch held his own press conference and told reporters that Rockefeller's plan might make HEW "simply a department of the dole."

Specifically, Rocky had suggested that the 10 percent federal income tax surcharge be retained to help support local schools and also called for a phased federal takeover of all public welfare cost financed by one-fourth of all United States revenue increases from now on.

Finch, who would have the major responsibility of implementing Rocky's plan if it became law, said he would prefer to obtain additional education funds from general revenues instead of retaining the surtax for this purpose.

The president was even less responsive —

Glory for Old Glory

NEW YORK — Something is happening to the American flag. Something wonderful. People are sticking decals of it on their cars and in their windows. You can now run Old Glory up your flagpole without attracting a crowd, or make mention of it in a speech without being branded a posturing political hack.

Reader's Digest recently distributed 18,000,000 flagstickers in its February issues around the world. The March issue contains a piece by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, telling of the day at West Point when he first comprehended that he belonged to the flag.

What has happened to us? Is it that the Flag has been befouled and burned by campus yuppies and mutilated by huns overseas? Is it that there has been an inexplicable return to what the Flag has meant to this land and other lands in a world that has always sought the security that Old Glory represents in any fight for freedom? Or is it that more people have come to their senses and rallied 'round it, in an hour of danger?

When General Eisenhower visited Seoul on his 1960 Asian trip, the South Korean government ordered that all who lined the streets to see and cheer him should be equipped with tiny American flags. A lady from the back country who had never seen our Flag betook herself to the village store to purchase one, before setting off for Seoul.

"It's beautiful," the old lady said, examining her purchase and timidly waving it. "I like it very much. Do you have it in any other colors?"

It came in many colors, a long time ago. All 13 colonies had flags of their own during the gestation period of the Revolutionary War. They featured rattlesnakes ("Don't Tread on Me"), pine trees and the like.

On January 1, 1776, the infant continental army besieging Boston rung up a new flag. It had 13 stripes, alternately red and white, and an interesting canton. The canton, the portion of the flag that now holds the 50 stars, on that day in 1776, was marked by, of all things, the Union Jack and the crosses of St. George and St. Andrew.

Different flagmakers, including Betsy Ross, interpreted the latter phraseology in their own ways. Some made flags with 12 stars in a circle and one in the center. Others came out with three horizontal rows of four, five and four. Others, perhaps still fearful of massive British retaliation, arranged the stars in the shapes of the crosses of St. George.

It raised goose bumps whenever and wherever unfurled. Lt. John Paul Jones' log carried an entry reading, "I had the honor to hoist with my own hands the flag of Freedom, the first time it was displayed on the Delaware."

Thirty-seven stars have been added to it since then, and it has had its ups and downs. But it always comes up smiling.

at least in public — to Rockefeller's proposals. Nixon sat in on the Urban Affairs Council meeting at which Rocky and his aides presented the plan, but had to leave about 10 minutes before the presentation was concluded in order to attend a National Security Council meeting.

However, Rocky and Nixon got together later in the day for nearly an hour of private conversation. Following both meetings, Nixon's press secretary, Ronald Ziegler, said the president had "no comment" on the Rockefeller suggestions.

Some support did come from more friendly quarters. Sen. Jacob J. Javits (R-NY) put out a statement calling the Rockefeller proposals "constructive and modern."

But Javits, as well as his colleague Sen. Charles E. Goodall (R-NY), have both submitted legislation calling for some form of revenue-sharing. They are both well aware of the plight in which New York and other large states find themselves. New York gets back about one nickel for every dollar it contributes in federal taxes, and yet must shoulder an ever-increasing burden of educational and welfare costs.

Moreover, Rockefeller's spiel is not really news to anyone in Washington because the governor was only repeating what he has been telling anyone who would listen for the last year or so.

That is: The states, particularly the larger ones, are at the end of their fiscal string and need urgent and massive help from Washington if they are to avert financial disaster.

Nixon's eventual response to the Rockefeller proposals is difficult to predict. During the campaign, Nixon more or less committed himself to some sort of "block grant" approach, but never really specified where such funds would come from or how they would be administered.

Furthermore, Nixon never committed himself to greatly increased domestic spending, but rather said that he would re-examine the objectives and methods of major federal domestic programs.

But Nixon has already demonstrated that he will readily forget campaign promises — as has every other president — if and when it suits his purposes to do so.

What good is pride?

The older I get the more convinced I am that "Pride" is overrated, and overpriced. You begin your life by taking pride in a pair of polished shoes. What's the harm in that? Then you take pride in your table manners, your school, your accomplishments, your country, your lawn, your family and one day the country ends up with so much pride they are bickering about who enters the door first at a peace conference. Pride was always a dumb thing. It was an eighth grader who wouldn't be caught dead speaking to a seventh grader. It was a family reunion where you wouldn't speak to Aunt Sarah because you called her the last three times and she never returned your call. It was a church bazaar where the canned goods booth wouldn't share their pickles with the hot dinner committee. It was a parish wedding that caused a father to host a loan from the credit union so the new in-laws wouldn't think he couldn't afford it. It's families being separated for years because no one can remember what they fought about in the first place. It's not being able to say "I'm sorry" even though you're right. It's not being able to cry when you feel like it. Pride wears many faces. Sometimes it's an innocent facade that simply means, "I've done the best I can" or "I've contributed to something good." Other times pride is a stubborn countenance that is fierce, pompous and unyielding. I remember several years ago I was a witness to a friend of ours giving his son a lesson in pride. He said, "You don't have to take anything off of anybody in this world. This is a free country and don't you forget it. Learn to stand on your own two feet and have some pride in yourself." I remember I wanted to run right home, shake our kids out of a sound sleep and tell them, "Your stupid pride and 10 cents will get you a package of breath-

Ann Landers

Buy padded girdle

Dear Ann Landers: Although I have gained only two pounds since my baby was born, my figure has changed completely. Everything I had before is still there, it's just relocated. With the proper foundation garments, I look fine from the waist up. It's the rest of me I'm concerned about. I used to have a nice curved look in the back but now I'm flat as a board. I don't know how to describe it except to say I've lost my fanny. Is there some exercise I can do to rebuild it? Thanks for your help.

NO LONGER WELL REARED

Dear No Longer: I know of no such exercise, but don't despair — help is on the way. Recently I saw advertised (by a very respectable store) a girdle with special padding. It will do for the back what falsies do for the front.

And please, girls, don't write and ask where these girdles can be purchased. I'm not pushing underwear this season. Call your local department store or lingerie shop.

Dear Ann Landers: I went with Kirk for several years. I tried to break up with him at least six times. Each time he cried and pleaded with me not to leave him, so I continued to see him. Kirk frequently said and did things that indicated he was unstable. I pleaded with him to get professional help but I got nowhere.

Last summer while vacationing out east I met a wonderful man — a widower with a child. We saw a great deal of each other and now I think I'm in love with him. He telephones me twice a week and sends something in the mail almost every day. He is coming to see me next week.

A few days ago I told Kirk there is someone else. He became hysterical and cried, "If you leave me I'll kill myself."

I am frightened and mixed up. If Kirk commits suicide I'll never forgive myself. I need advice at once.

STAR SISTER

Dear Star: Don't allow Kirk's illness to ruin your life. Emotional blackmail can be a dangerous game. Those who become victimized pay a dear price.

Tell Kirk one more time that he must get professional help. Then bid him goodbye — and mean it. You will have done as much for him as anyone could.

We finally came up with a beautiful picture of a Volkswagen.

A Volkswagen starts looking good when everything else starts looking bad.

Let's say it's late at night and you can't sleep. It's 10 below and you forgot to put antifreeze in your car.

(Antifreeze doesn't use antifreeze. Its engine is cooled by air.)

Let's say it's now morning: You start your car and the gas gauge reads Empty.

(Even with a gallon left, you should go approximately 27 miles in a VW.)

Let's say you notice on your way out of the driveway that every other car on your block is stuck in the snow.

(A VW goes very well in snow because the engine is in the back. It gives the rear wheels much better traction.)

Let's say you make it into town and the only parking space is half a space between a snow plow and a big, fat wall.

(A VW is small enough to fit into half a parking space.)

Let's say it's now 9:15 a.m. and the only other guy in the office is your boss.

(Now what could be more beautiful than that?)

The bidding:
North 1♦ Pass South 2♣ Pass
2♦ Pass 2NT Pass

Opening lead—three of hearts.
"Dear Mr. Becker: This hand occurred in a rubber bridge game. I held the East cards. My partner the Jack. West then three notrump and I won with the ace. I returned my original fourth best heart, the six, in accordance with standard convention.

"Declarer played the ten and my partner the jack. West then shifted to a spade and South won the rest of the tricks, taking six clubs, two spades and three diamonds.

"Obviously something went wrong with the defense, since we could have taken five heart tricks right away. West contends that switching to a spade was proper because it was perfectly possible for declarer to have started with the Q-10-7-5 of hearts in which case leading the king at trick three could prove fatal.

"I see no flaw in his argument because I would also have returned the six if I had held the A-6-2. Is there any way for West to know to lead the king of hearts? Cordially yours, W.H.M.

Perhaps the best way of answering this is to go back to East's play at trick two. It is true that in returning a suit partner opens, it is customary to lead back the card which was originally fourth best. This generally enables the other defender to pinpoint declarer's exact length and strength in the suit.

But, as can be seen, the return of the six in the present case did not really clarify the position for West because East's return could have been based on either of two radically different holdings. West might possibly have cashed the king and hoped for the best, but he could not be sure this would turn out right.

Actually, East's proper play is to return the deuce of hearts, not the six! It is true that this would cause West to think that East originally had four hearts and declarer, therefore, three. But West could then safely cash the king, and the actual heart situation would thus become exposed.

Just Between Us—

By Bobby Westbrook

Want to hear some encouraging news for a change? The vanguard of male robins staking out housing sites have reached Philadelphia and the people in Lancaster report hearing flocks of geese heading north.

Our most encouraging sign of Spring so far is a thin icing of mud on our deep-freeze. Meanwhile some lucky people have met Summer more than half-way. The Jack Baldwins and the Bob Weichels, for instance, have been at the King's Inn in Freeport, Grand Bahama.

They were planning to have dinner with Harry Obitz and Dick Farley and their families for a good old Shawnee reunion with the temperature at 78. When they flew from Fort Lauderdale a week ago Sunday, they found the airport a madhouse with people not able to get flights north because of the storm.

While New Yorkers were stormbound that Sunday, Madalyn and Carl Volt were trying to get into New York City which they found as hard as getting out. Busy with their wedding plans, they hadn't listened to the weather news and found themselves abandoned in Newark.

They finally made it by taxi by way of Kearney, and then wondered why they'd bothered because nothing was open, not even the restaurants. However, things were bound to get better and they did—in Atlantic City.

Meanwhile at home while we may be lagging behind the seasons in weather, we're sort of getting a head start on trying to bridge the much touted, generation gap. Have you noticed how many adult groups are scheduling youth panels, ready and willing to listen to what they have to say?

We've asked them what they think about so-called new morality, about the draft, about parent behavior, and, in the one coming up tonight, about race relations. The success of these efforts depends on how far the young people are willing to go in saying what they really think and how ready the audience is to listen if they do.

Sex education plays part in good mental health

STROUDSBURG — "People with good emotional health feel confident about themselves; they feel right about other people in being able to give or receive love; and they are able to meet the difficulties and to plan ahead without fear of the future or trying to cross all of the bridges all of the time."

The speaker was Dr. Ruth Dunning, speaking to members of the B. F. Morey Parent Teachers Assn. at their February meeting.

She was speaking on sex education, which deals with sex and sexuality, both part of good mental health. Since some parents either do not have the knowledge themselves or feel it is impossible to communicate it to their children, the school is the logical place for sex education, she said.

"The earlier it is taught, the better," she added. Each individual has basic needs: physiological, security, love, esteem or identity, and self reliance, she said, and with these needs fulfilled, a person can have good mental health.

A question and answer period followed her talk. She was introduced by Mrs. John Meunier, program chairman.

Kenneth Williams presided at the meeting.

Russell Treible, Morey school principal, introduced the new faculty members and student teachers present.

A candy sale will begin in Feb. 28. Mrs. Glenn Detrick, chairman of ways and means, asked any parents in helping with the sale to call her.

The nominating committee is now selecting officers and committees for the coming year. Anyone wishing to volunteer their services in any capacity is asked to call Mrs. Gene D. Price.

Mrs. Terry Lee Miller

Miller-McDermott rites held in Englewood, N. J.

ENGLEWOOD, N.J. — The marriage of Miss Margaret McDermott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. McDermott of 30 Dillingham Place, Englewood Cliffs, and Terry Lee Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Miller of White Heron Lake, Marshalls Creek, was performed at a nuptial mass at 3 p.m. on Saturday, Feb. 15, in St. Cecilia's Church, Englewood.

The bride, presented in marriage by her father, was attended by Mrs. Charles Anderson, sister of the bride, of Des Plaines, Ill., as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Rosemary Fernekes of Englewood, Miss Mary Hammel of Englewood, and Miss Patricia Natale of Englewood.

Guy Miller of Marshalls Creek, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man.

Ushers included John McDermott of Englewood, Jerome Wolak of Hickory Hills, Ill., and Vincent Yurgalis of Easton.

After a reception at Leo's Restaurant in Englewood Cliffs, the couple left for a wedding trip in the Pocono Mountains. They plan to establish residence in Brooklyn, N.Y.

Mrs. Miller was graduated from St. Cecilia High School, Englewood, and Katharine Gibbs School, New York, N.Y. She is now employed as a secretary by I.H. Brown Shoe Company, New York, N.Y.

Her husband, who was graduated from Easton Area Joint High School, Easton, is an aviation electronics technician with the United States Coast Guard, stationed at Floyd Bennett Field Brooklyn, New York.

Mrs. Wildrick earns honor of national Garden Clubs

PORTLAND — The name of Mrs. John Wildrick Jr., a member of the Portland Garden Club, has been perpetuated in "our distinguished Book of Appreciation" by the National Council of State Garden Clubs.

Announcement of the honor to one of its members was made at the club meeting at Green Acres, Mount Bethel, home of Mrs. Stephen Bartlett with Mrs. Wildrick serving as co-hostess.

Her name was selected by the trustees for the Permanent Home and Endowment Fund, St. Louis, Mo.

The program at the meeting featured slides of previous flower shows sponsored by the club before a discussion on the plans for the May 10 and 11 flower show, "Maytime" to be held in the Portland National Bank.

Mrs. Olin Cramer presided at the business session. Announcement was made of the Eastern YWCA Garden Club on Feb. 26, at 1 p.m., the Philadelphia Spring Garden Show at Exhibition Hall in the Civic Center, March 9 to March 17 and the Reading Garden Show on March 26.

Refreshments were served to Mrs. Philip Strunk, Mrs. Lela Williams, Mrs. Henry Webb, Mrs. E. Randall Carpenter, Mrs. James Widman Jr., Mrs. Willard Szyker, Mrs. Herbert Hoagland, Mrs. Barrett Transue, Mrs. Olin Cramer.

Margaret Heller weds South Carolina realtor

SWARTHMORE — The marriage of Mrs. Margaret K. Heller of Stroudsburg to N. Pinckney Smoak of Bamberg, S. C., was held on Saturday, Feb. 15 at the home of her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Edward P. Heller of 10 Guernsey Road, Swarthmore.

Dr. Frederick Druckenmiller performed the 1 p.m. ceremony. The house was decorated with velvet hearts trimmed in antique lace with a table arrangement of red and white carnations.

The bride, given in marriage by her son, wore a street-length gold knitted dress and carried a nosegay of small green orchids.

Cindy Heller, the bride's granddaughter, was flower girl. She wore a red velvet dress trimmed in white lace and carried a small nosegay of white flowers. Mrs. Heller, the bride's daughter-in-law, also wore a red velvet dress trimmed in white lace.

Andy Heller, grandson of the bride, played the piano for the ceremony and accompanied a quartet composed of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Heller and Mr. and Mrs. J. Robert Bennett of Wallingford.

A luncheon followed the ceremony. A rehearsal dinner was held at the Alpine Inn on Friday for members of the families of the bride and bridegroom.

Mrs. Heller, widow of Clifford Heller of Stroudsburg, has long been active in church and community affairs in this area. A graduate of West Chester State College, she formerly taught school in Camden.

Her husband, a graduate of Wofford College, Spartanburg, South Carolina, is active in his own realty firm in Bamberg, S. C., where they will be at home after March 15.

Longacre lodge plans rummage sale

TANNERSVILLE — Final plans for the rummage sale sponsored by Elsie Longacre Rebekah Lodge 529 will be made at their meeting tonight at 7:30 in the lodge hall in Tannersville.

The sale will be held March 13 and 14 at 314 Main St., Stroudsburg. Clothing may be brought to the store on Wednesday night, March 12, or arrangements will be made to pick up donations if members call the chairman, Mrs. Cora Sebring, or Mrs. Betty Melvin.

At the last meeting, games were played with prizes to Vera Walters, Ruth Howell, Cora Sebring and Betty Morgan. Refreshments were served from a valentine table by Mrs. Betty Brader and her committee.

Service tonight at Neola church

NEOLA — The Kellersville-McMichaels - Neola Methodist United Church will hold its first Lenten service on Ash Wednesday at 7:30 in the Neola Church.

The young people of the church will provide music and Rev. Edwin Meeres, pastor of the charge, will deliver the message. Everyone is welcome.

LUNCHEON FOR THE GIRLS

An American adaptation of a fascinating hot bread from India.

Hot Chicken Broth with Parsley, Chicken-Pear Salad, Cheese Puffs, Bon-bons, Beverage.

Cheese Puffs (Poori)
2 Cups sifted regular flour
3 tablespoons solid white shortening

1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup (lightly packed) medium-grated sharp cheddar cheese

1/2 to two-thirds cup water
Into flour, with a pastry blender, cut shortening until particles are fine. Stir in salt and cheese, then enough water to make a soft dough. Turn out on prepared pastry cloth and knead until very smooth—about 10 minutes.

Cover and let rest 10 minutes. Roll dough, a small portion at a time, until extremely thin. Cut into 2 1/2-inch rounds. Fry in deep fat heated to 385 degrees until puffed and golden, turning once. Drain well. Roll leavings of dough, cut and fry—these rounds will probably not puff very much, but they will taste delicious. If puffs are made well ahead of serving, they may be reheated briefly in a moderate oven. They should be served hot. Makes about 3 dozen.

Lenten service to begin

STROUDSBURG — A new venture in Mid-week Lenten Service will be inaugurated by the Stroudsburg Churches today at 7:30 p.m. in each church.

The clergy of the churches will exchange pulpits which will provide an opportunity to the members of these churches to hear the pastors of their sister congregations preach. In several of the churches the worship services will be led by lay members of the congregation.

Participating churches in this program are Stroudsburg Methodist Church, Stroudsburg Presbyterian Church, Arlington Methodist Church, Christ Episcopal Church, and St. John's Lutheran Church.

A theme "The Seven Deadly Sins" will be used and the subjects have been assigned as follows: The Rev. Charles Park will preach on "Pride," the Rev. Harold Burkett on "Envy," the Rev. William Gilles on "Anger," the Rev. William Leopold on "Despair," the Rev. George Peters on "Lust," the Rev. David High on "Gluttony," and the Rev. Francis Barrett and the Rev. Robert Gibson on "Sloth."

Rev. Leopold gave this definition of the services:

"One of the preaching themes of the ancient church was the seven deadly sins. At first glance one would judge them hopelessly dated and out of place in our so-called modern age. Closer inspection, however, discovers how surprisingly relevant they are.

"Consider gluttony in a starving world, envy and the status symbols, anger in a competitive society, pride and the image makers."

"Too often we conjure up stereotypical images such as 'diamond Jim' Brady for the glutton and Louis XIV in his regal trapping as the proud man. In our times the deadly sins hide behind the masks of the accepted conventions of our society. It is the task of contemporary preaching to unmask them."

Bender sent to hospital for testing

STROUDSBURG — Max Bender, 63, of Pocono Summit, charged with the murder of his wife in their Monroe County home, has been sent to Fairview State Hospital, Waymart, to undergo psychiatric examination.

Bender was found able to stand trial by a three-member sanity commission appointed by Monroe County Court.

Bender is charged with the shooting of his wife, Beatrice. Her body was found by a neighbor on Dec. 14, 1968, in the couple's home at Stillwater Estates.

Judge Arlington W. Williams approved a petition submitted by Atty. William J. Leon, Bender's lawyer, to have additional psychiatric tests.

Dr. John P. Shovlin, Fairview's superintendent, has been directed to file with the Monroe County court a report of the findings of the examination, along with conclusions and recommendations.

After the examinations have been completed, Bender is to be returned to Monroe County Jail.

William Andress dies at 85 in E.S. home

EAST STROUDSBURG — William S. Andress, 85, died Tuesday in his home at 135 Center St., East Stroudsburg.

Born in Stroudsburg, he was a son of the late Hampton and Eliza Snyder Andress.

Mr. Andress had been employed until he retired, by the Pontiac Garage, Stroudsburg. He had also worked at the Indian Queen and Penn Stroud Hotels, Stroudsburg.

He was a member of St. John's Lutheran Church, Stroudsburg, and was a former member of the church's council.

Survivors include five daughters, Mrs. Clarence Pugh, Minisink Hills; Mrs. Forrest Snyder, East Stroudsburg R.D. 2; Mrs. Ralph Scheirer, East Stroudsburg, and Mrs. Elwood Batcher and Mrs. Lawrence Hillard, both of Delaware Water Gap.

Also, four sons, Joseph H. Andress, Pensacola, Fla.; Richard W. Andress, Stroudsburg; John D. Andress, Asbury Park, N.J.; and Albert R. Andress, East Stroudsburg; 22 grandchildren, 41 great-grandchildren, and three great-grandchildren, and two brothers, Roy Andress, Palmerton, and Clarence Andress, East Stroudsburg.

Services will be held Friday at 2 p.m. in the Daniel G. Warner Funeral Home with the Rev. William C. Leopold and the Rev. William F. Winder officiating.

Burial will be in Stroudsburg Cemetery.

Friends and relatives may call at the funeral home Thursday after 7 p.m.

Otis Alger, ex-resident, succumbs

TANNERSVILLE — Otis C. Alger, former resident of Tannersville, died in Hudson, Mich., Tuesday morning. He was 82.

Mr. Alger, who moved from Tannersville in 1952, is survived by his wife, Ethel, and two daughters, Mrs. Samuel Kellerhals, Stroudsburg, and Mrs. Louise Dobbins, Hudson, three grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

Mr. Alger, who was known as "Doc" to his friends in the area, formerly owned the Pocono Diner and was one of the pioneer real estate developers in Monroe County.

He purchased a section of the Christian farm in the late 1940s and since that time Our Lady of Victory Church, Pocono Township Fire House, Pocono Central Ambulance Assn., Metzger's Market, Swisher's Beer Distributing Co., and other buildings are now situated on the property.

A number of homes have been constructed on this section of the old Christian tract.

Services will be conducted in Hudson, Mich., on Thursday.

Wightman's condition is critical. She applied her brakes and slid approximately 61 feet and the car crashed into a concrete bridge.

Redevelopment Authority okays Stroudsburg's NDP

EAST STROUDSBURG — The Monroe County Redevelopment Authority Tuesday approved the Stroudsburg Neighborhood Development Program planning grant request. The request is in the amount of $17,500 which will be sent to the state Department of Community Affairs. Michael Cabot, planning consultant to the borough of Stroudsburg, presented the request to the authority for its approval. Cabot informed authority members that the program calls for the renewal efforts to take place initially in Stroudsburg's Stofflet St. area, followed by action in the borough's First Ward Area. He reiterated the fact that the downtown area is not included in the Neighborhood Development Program. He stated that the downtown area will be taken care of through alternate programs which are currently available to the borough. Cabot went on to explain how the Stofflet area was given top priority by the planning commission. The Stofflet St. area encompasses 6.4 acres of land on which are located 28 structures and 25 families. Of the existing

Pocono gives fire report

TANNERSVILLE — The Pocono Township Volunteer Fire Company of Tannersville answered 27 emergency calls during 1968 with a total of 524 man-hours spent during the alarms. On Nov. 25, 1968, the company had the last call of the year, the 604th call since it was organized, according to William Raish, fire chief. The alarms are broken down as follows: nine building fires (three of these were assistance calls out of the township); eight grass fires, five brush or forest fires, one dump fire and four motor vehicle fires.

Mothers might rebel against shuttering Water Gap school

By BOB GROFF
Pocono Record Reporter
DELAWARE WATER GAP — "There's a price for progress. Something has to go," said Rodney L. Baechold, Stroudsburg Area School District board member, Tuesday night. The "something" is the Delaware Water Gap elementary school and the statement was made to the Delaware Water Gap Parent-Teacher Association. Baechold and Samuel O. Wells, superintendent-elect of Stroudsburg Area School District, met with the PTA within the very walls of the school which Wells will recommend to be closed down. The two men were at the meeting to explain why the school must be closed. The action will be taken, according to them, on a recommendation from the State Department of Public Instruction, which declared that the school was an antiquated, out of date facility. However, they added, the recommendation of the DPI is not the sole cause of the closing. Economically, they explained, keeping the school open is simply not feasible. In a lengthy explanation, Baechold also pointed out that the Water Gap school does not fit in the district's plans to provide a broad educational opportunity to the pupils which attend the school. 26 students

The school presently has 26 students who attend grades one through four. The building, a two-story structure, has three classrooms to accommodate the students and two teachers. Baechold used figures to show that the cost per pupil at the Water Gap School was twice as much as the cost per pupil in any of the other district schools. In using round figures, he said that the cost per pupil per year at Ramsey School was $800, whereas the cost per pupil at Water Gap was $1,600. In his opening statement, Baechold said the school board had weighed the positive factors of keeping the school open against the negative factors and found that the negative factors far outweighed the other. On the positive side, he said, there is the fact that the pupil-teacher ratio is very low and that the ratio allows for nearly a private tutoring situation. However, he said, the school is not providing adequate educational facilities, there is no gym, the playground facilities are inadequate, the library facilities are not what the board would like to have, and there is no cafeteria. Cloistered Also, Baechold said that the small school presents a cloistered situation which does not allow the students to have contact with the outside world, thereby limiting their exposure to other socio-economic-racial groups. He said the situation might be harmful to the children when they must adjust from being in a smaller group as they are put into larger groups in the fifth grade in other area schools. Wells said that the teaching at the school was excellent and the teacher-pupil relationship was an ideal situation, but that basically, keeping the school open was economically unsound. "You people have some arguments. You know who the school secretary of the school board is. Put the arguments on paper and send them to him," he said. "It was recommended to close the school in January, but this was not done," he added. Wells, toward the end of the meeting, said, "What I've heard hasn't done anything to change my mind." He was referring to the arguments that were presented by the 25 people who attended the meeting. Those who were concerned about the closing argued that the quality of the teaching in the school was excellent because of the pupil-teacher ratio. Visual aids Also mentioned was the fact the school was not destitute of facilities and pointed to the audio-visual aids available to the teachers, including television sets. Questions were raised by parents about the possibility of bringing children into the Gap School from areas closer to the borough than Stroudsburg. Also argued was the point that Stroudsburg currently sends pupils to the St. John's Lutheran Church to attend classes because of lack of classroom space in the regular schools. Basically the mothers argued that the quality of education available to their children was their main point in keeping the school open. The PTA voted to circulate a petition to the effect and indicated that will fight the closing of the school.

Westbrook named Stroud supervisor; Albert to retire

STROUDSBURG — Stroud Township supervisor-secretary Harold E. Albert said he will not seek reelection to the township supervisor post which he has held for the last 25 years during a Supervisors' meeting Tuesday. Stroudsburg funeral director and former Monroe County treasurer, J. Nelson Westbrook of 980 Drake Lane, Stroud Township, was appointed supervisor to fill the unexpired term of George M. Hallett who died Feb. 4. Hallett, chairman of the Stroud Township Supervisors for 27 years, died in the General Hospital of Monroe County. Westbrook said it would be "hard to fill the shoes of a man such as Mr. Hallett," but he would do his best to promote the township's progress, "keeping always in mind the welfare of those whom we serve as supervisors." A member of the board of directors of the Monroe County Community Chest, Westbrook previously served the unexpired term of former Stroud Township supervisor Jay Albertson from July to Dec. 31, 1967. Albert who has been a supervisor for 25 years and secretary for 30 years, said he thought he had done his best for the township residents when he announced he will not be a candidate for the supervisor post in this year's primary election. In reviewing a quarter of a century's history in Stroud Township, Albert said he has seen the township grow from 1,000 residents to more than 5,000 in 1960 and between 7,500 to 8,000 at present. "I've seen this township change from all dirt roads to all blacktop roads," he said. He was especially proud of his charter membership in the Stroud Township Volunteer Fire Co., which was organized in 1942. With current township tax rates lower than either Stroudsburg or East Stroudsburg boroughs, Albert sees the township's growth rate rising steadily year after year. Other municipal accomplishments he could point back on with pride was the erection of the township building in 1961, the successful recovery from the disastrous 1955 flood which wiped out township roads and bridges, and the current modernization of township equipment.

Stroud Twp. hires three policemen

STROUDSBURG — Stroud Township Supervisors Tuesday appointed two fulltime policemen and a parttime township policeman. Henry Shollhammer of Stroudsburg R.D. 2 and James Carey of 218 Winona Road, Mount Pocono, were appointed fulltime patrolmen at an annual salary of $8,200. In January two township patrolmen, Loren A. Doty and Francis Cisarso, resigned over working conditions. Shollhammer's appointment was effective immediately while Carey's will take place March 17. Carey, presently Mount Pocono police chief, has given his 30-day notice, Feb. 14 to March 14, to Mount Pocono Borough Council to give council time to appoint a new police chief. Robert Brinn of 811 Flagler St. Stroudsburg was also hired as a parttime patrolman at $2.50 an hour. Supervisor-secretary Harold Albert complained about the lack of interest in municipal finance on the part of township residents when he said not one resident has come into the municipal building to look at the present budget. Supervisors set 1969 township tax rates which included general fund, four mills, down one mill from last year; fire tax, one mill; sinking fund, one mill and per capita tax, five dollars. Supervisor chairman James A. Somers Jr. and newly appointed supervisor Nelson Westbrook will attend the Pennsylvania Association of Township Supervisors' Convention at the Hilton Hotel, Pittsburgh on April 20 to 23. Bids will be advertised for a new front-end loader. The following developer's roads will be taken over by the township: Mockingbird Hill Road, an extension of Rockdale Lane to the new Pepsi Cola distributing plant, and acceptance of roads from Stroud Estates Developers. The supervisors borrowed $5,000 for current expenses from the First Stroudsburg National Bank at a three-and-a-half percent interest rate. Total borrowing this year is now $10,000 which represents one-third of the $30,000 borrowing capital set up in the 1969 budget. The supervisors appointed Westbrook sanitary code officer and Franklin Bentzoni road foreman at three dollars an hour. Westbrook was also appointed supervisor vice-chairman to fill the vacancy of Somers who was made chairman during a special meeting last week.

With current township tax rates lower than either Stroudsburg or East Stroudsburg boroughs, Albert sees the township's growth rate rising steadily year after year. Other municipal accomplishments he could point back on with pride was the erection of the township building in 1961, the successful recovery from the disastrous 1955 flood which wiped out township roads and bridges, and the current modernization of township equipment.

Demos back lower age for voting

STROUDSBURG — The Democratic State Committee met in Harrisburg on Monday and unanimously endorsed the proposal to reduce the voting age in Pennsylvania from 21 to 18. Attorney Samuel W. Newman and Harry Rider, state committeemen from Monroe County, attended the meeting, along with Stuart F. Pipher, Monroe County Democratic Chairman. At a separate meeting of the Democratic State Policy Committee on Monday, Louis L. Manderino, 39 year old Dean of the Duquesne University Law School in Pittsburgh, was endorsed as the Democratic candidate for Justice of the Supreme Court to fill the vacancy created by the death of Justice Michael A. Musmanno in the coming primary of May 20. The court seat is currently held by Justice Thomas W. Pomeroy, Jr., of Pittsburgh, appointed by Governor Shafer for an interim term ending next January. Several constitutional amendments have been introduced in the Legislature, by both parties, to reduce the voting age. Indications are that the proposal will meet with legislative approval, but the issue must be resolved finally by the State's voters after the Legislature adopts the amendment at two successive sessions.

Laura Miller dies at 49

PHILADELPHIA — Mrs. Laura J. Miller, 49, of East Stroudsburg R. D. 2, died Tuesday in the Graduate Hospital in Philadelphia, where she had been a patient. She is survived by her husband, Lorenzo Miller, at home. Funeral arrangements will be announced by the Lantierman Funeral Home.

Young students view 18th century

STROUDSBURG — Mrs. Wendell Wicks, of the Quiet Valley Farm Museum, was a guest of the fourth and fifth grades of the Arlington Heights School on Tuesday, during the telecast of "18th Century Pennsylvanians." The presentation was a preview of one section of the "Lehigh Valley Story", a series for television being produced by station WLVT-TV, Channel 39. The filming of this section of the "Lehigh Valley Story" at Quiet Valley was done at the suggestion of Roger Dunning, a member of the Program Committee of WLVT-TV and Stroudsburg elementary supervisor. The Quiet Valley Farm Museum covers two centuries of time and was an ideal laboratory for the study of the culture and life of rural America in this area. Mrs. Wicks appeared before the children in costume and provided costumes for two of the students as well. After the showing of the television program, the children shared in a discussion of farm life in the 17th and 18th centuries. Mrs. Wicks provided artifacts for discussion and exhibition. The fourth grade teacher is Mrs. Dorothy Dietrick, and the fifth grade teacher is Mrs. Marion Serfass. Student teachers are John Chaman and Holly Thompson.

Dr. John McKeon, who has agreed to coach the East Stroudsburg State track team for this season, has been getting nothing but bad news.

First Ben Kizer, who McKeon feels could be the number one sprinter on the Pennsylvania Conference with a little training, has decided to give up the sport. Kizer was clocked under 10 seconds twice last year although he has nothing resembling a start.

Then Gil Rodgers, a triple threat for the Warriors, banged up a knee during the summer and may have to limit his activities to only one event.

And if that's not enough Joe Ahouse, who has the potential to be a top-notch distance runner, has ligament damage to a knee and may not be able to do any running.

ESSC has the facilities to develop an outstanding track team if it can hire a coach that will stay around long enough.

School officials are constantly getting requests from other schools to use the fieldhouse and next week will host a track meet between Lehigh and Lafayette.

Now that Dr. Charles Wolbers and Vince McHugh have patched their troubles, the ESSC tennis team could be one of the top teams in the East.

McHugh is expected to team with Neal Curtis, former Hellertown star, and give the Warriors a top one-two punch.

ESSC golf coach George Ockerhausen is looking forward to the 1969 season.

He feels he has five outstanding golfers, headed by Steve Guter and Billy Palmer and lacks only a sixth man.

East Stroudsburg High athletic director Jack Kist has announced a switch in nights for two basketball games later this week.

The Cavaliers travel to Parkland on Thursday night and to Pocono Mountain Friday night.

The Pocono Mountain Boosters Club has renamed its 1968 slate of officers to serve again next year because "of an excellent job done in 1968."

The officers include Anthony Cebula, president; James Quick, vice president; Gordon Neison, secretary and William Woehrl, treasurer.

This corner would also like to issue a final reminder to the followers of the East Stroudsburg Little League of tonight's important meeting in the high school.

The league failed to elect a slate of officers at its last meeting because not enough interested persons attended.

Roger Christman, president of the Kunkletown entry in the Pocono Mountain Baseball League, has called a team meeting for Thursday at 8 p.m. at the American Hotel in Kunkletown.

All officers, players and any interested players are invited to the meeting.

Red Kresge, one of the veteran players for K-town, has taken on a new assignment for 1969. Kresge and his daughter have agreed to be statisticians with the hope of keeping up to date on the leading hitters and pitchers in the league.

Owners outline six increased benefits

BALTIMORE (UPI)—Frank Cashen, executive vice president of the Baltimore Orioles, issued a lengthy statement Tuesday night outlining six increased benefits major league players will receive if they accept the owners' latest offer of an annual $5.3 million contribution to the pension fund.

"We are issuing this statement," Cashen said, "because we don't feel the owners' side of this dispute has been outlined clearly enough."

The six increased benefits Cashen listed were: a $500 per month retirement benefit for a 10-year major league veteran at age 56 instead of the current $500; a lowering of the retirement age from 50 to 45 at which 10-year veterans can begin receiving benefits; a raise in the disability benefit from $500 per month plus $50 for each child.

Also, the adding of a $50 per child figure to the current benefit for widows of pensioned players; a flat $50,000 life insurance policy for all active players and a $25,000 policy for inactive vested players in the pension plan; and an increase of about 50 per cent in medical benefits.

"We are mailing a copy of these proposals to all our players in hopes that they will vote to accept the owners' latest offer and report to spring training on schedule," Cashen said. "The players have asked for three more items to which we cannot agree. They want severance pay of a thousand dollars a year for any player with four years in the majors, they want the vesting period in the pension plan reduced from five years to four and they want more death and health care benefits. These three items would cost the clubs an additional million dollars a year."

The Orioles battersmen are scheduled to open spring training in Miami today.

'S' Club meeting delayed week

STRODSBURG — The Varsity 'S' Club meeting scheduled for tonight has been postponed until next Thursday.

The site and time of next week's meeting will be announced later. Samuel O. Wells III, superintendent-elect of Stroudsburg schools, is expected to attend and outline the athletic picture at the high school.

PV frosh rout Pocah, 77-57

BROOKDALE — Three players accounted for 71 points Tuesday in leading the Pleasant Valley freshmen to a 77-57 win over Pocono Central Catholic.

Parron Frey was the top gun for the winners with 27 points. Scott Gordon had 23 and Rick Meltsell 21. Rodney Pratt tallied 22 for the losers.

East Stroudsburg beaten by Bangor

BANGOR — Bangor defeated East Stroudsburg, 67-52 Tuesday night for its first win in five outings in the second half race in the Lehigh-Northampton League's Northern Division.

In other action Parkland downed Pen Argyl, 72-68 and Nazareth took over first with a win over Hellertown.

The Cavaliers, who played without Matt Hood and Jim Waller, were locked in a 36-all tie at halftime.

But in the third period the Slaters (7-12) outscored Eastburg (9-11) 19 to 6 and put the game out of reach.

Floyd Hunt was a one-man gang for Bangor as he hit for 24 points and hauled down 19 of his team's 58 rebounds.

Ridge Hughes added 19 for the winners.

Tom Kishbaugh paced the Cavaliers with 22 points and 13 rebounds. Eastburg hit on 17 of 50 shots as compared to 22 of 64 for the winners.

Bangor won the JV game, 71-66 after trailing by 27 points at halftime.

Parkland and Pen Argyl matched points for the first three periods as the former carried a 54-52 lead into the final eight minutes.

Two quick baskets by Bob Bath gave the Knights (6-15) a 56-54 lead but Tim Miller quickly put the Trojans (7-14) back on top by matching those two-pointers.

Parkland then appeared to have put the game out of reach as it opened a nine-point lead in the next 90 seconds of play.

But again Pen Argyl bounced back. A jumper by Dave Lessig started the spree and a three-point play by Tom Dentith closed it. The spurt cut Parkland's lead to 68-66.

Parkland then went into a freeze for 1:34 before it forced the Knights to commit fouls.

Scott Charles and Miller were the big guns for the winners with 26 and 17 points respectively. Bath had 21, Bob Kauffman 16 and Dwight Respher 15 for the losers.

Parkland also preliminary contest, 63-55.

Stroudsburg gained its first half lead thanks to a strong performance by Mel Abel. The 6-2 junior had 17 of his 26 points in the first half, 11 of them on five driving field goals and a foul in the second period.

John Marvia also had a hot night with 25 points, six in the second period and 10 in the fourth.

Roy Stauffer and Bruce Weider, the first and fifth leading scorers in the league, led the winners with 29 and 27 points respectively.

Emmaus also won the JV game 70-58. Dave Cook had 14, Mike Wells, 12, and Gary Freeman 11 for the losers.

Nazareth took over first with a win over Hellertown.

The Cavaliers, who played without Matt Hood and Jim Waller, were locked in a 36-all tie at halftime.

But in the third period the Slaters (7-12) outscored Eastburg (9-11) 19 to 6 and put the game out of reach.

Floyd Hunt was a one-man gang for Bangor as he hit for 24 points and hauled down 19 of his team's 58 rebounds.

Ridge Hughes added 19 for the winners.

The stricken hero

(C) 1969 NEW YORK TIMES NEWS SERVICE

NEW YORK — Bobby Hull eyed the steak with the greedy intensity of a starving man — which he was. For six weeks the scoring dynamo of the Chicago Black Hawks had been on a liquid diet, but now the wires had just been removed from his broken jaw and at long last he would be able to have solid food. All during that time visions of steaks had been dancing through his mind until they almost added up to a hallucinatory butcher shop. A fortnight ago he was able to abandon the pap, mush and goo that had barely sustained him.

"When the chance finally came," he said sheepishly today, "I was afraid of a steak, afraid I couldn't handle it because my bite is off a bit. So I settled for — I'm almost ashamed to admit it — Cheeseburger."

But Bobby was observed tonight attacking red meat with all the gusto of the noble trencherman he is. This was at Toots Shor's where he was the honor guest of the National Hockey League as the recipient of the Lester Patrick Memorial Trophy for his contributions to the ice game over the years.

They have been notable contributions because the GOLDEN JET is probably the most electrifying player in the sport today. He is a scoring marvel. First he equalled the one-season 50-goal record set by Maurice (the Rocket) Richard and equalled by Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion. Then he surpassed that magic total twice more with 54-goal and 52-goal seasons. And he has the appealing, unspoiled personality that makes him a genuine fan idol.

"How did I break my jaw?" He repeated, rubbing a hand tenderly over the right side of his face. "I'm not sure. I came out of a game with Detroit with a very sore jaw but the doctor said that it couldn't be broken or I wouldn't be able to eat."

"Then a couple of games later I ran into an elbow. It was attached to Mike Pelyk of Toronto. He's a big, strong kid and he didn't mean it. It probably was my fault in skating into him. I knew then the jaw was broken and I can't forget the date. It was Christmas and my Christmas dinner had not been a turkey. It was steak."

"Not until February was I to taste steak again. When I was home my wife did the best she could to keep me nourished, mixing everything in a blender. I took a blender with me on the first road trip but then I'd settle for soup with eggs in it, or maybe milk shakes with high protein health foods. I lost 12 pounds and I just didn't have the strength in the last period. I even kept away from the scales and won't weigh myself again until I'm back to my normal 193 pounds."

Despite his handicap, Hull still has contrived to lead the league in scoring goals with a total of 37. With 18 games left in the regular season, could he make the 13 he would need for another 50-goal year?

"It's possible," he said imperturbably. "After all, I scored 37 goals in a 35-game stretch during my first 50-goal year."

Yet equalling the old and classic record in 1962 could not have been the thrill for him that had to come when he finally broke it in 1958.

"No," he said. "That was the big one, my 51st goal. It was much bigger than 52 or 53 or 54. They were just icing on the cake but No. 51 was the whole cake — including the candles."

"The night after I hit 50, I should have had 51 in Toronto. I had some good chances but missed. I don't quite remember how it went but it seems to me that we were shut out three times in a row. Then we played the Rangers in Chicago and had a power play going."

"The screwiest part of it was that Lou Angotti kicked the puck toward me as he skated to the bench. That's how he got an assist even though he was sitting on the bench when the goal was scored. I picked up the puck at the blue line, gathering speed. I cut diagonally over center and really didn't have a good crack at it. Eric Nesterenko screened out Cesare Maniago, the Ranger goalie, and the puck went in. The ovation from the crowd lasted eight minutes. Phil Esposito, my center and buddy, rushed over to hug me."

"Bobby," he said, "I don't know how you feel but I got goose bumps as big as robins' eggs."

"I expect I'm the same," I said, not knowing exactly what to say anyway.

"The only thrill to compare with it came this season. I'd held out for the opening game and didn't even take a warm-up after I'd signed and gotten into uniform for the second game. But when I came up the stairs, the crowd spotted me and realized for the first time I was back. The ovation I received made me tingle. I was so embarrassed that I felt like crawling under the bench and hiding from them. But I gotta admit, I was awfully proud."

At the age of 30 the Golden Jet is talking of retiring in another year or so even though that ageless marvel, Gordie Howe, is still a whirlwind at almost 41.

"I'm missing the fun of my four boys," said Bobby wistfully. "Not long ago one of them said, 'Mom, please take away Daddy's suitcase so he can't leave us any more.'"

NEW YORK (UPI)—The test of wills between the owners and the players continued Tuesday with Marvin Miller, executive director of the Players Association, insisting the players won't panic and defect as the pressure builds from the owners.

"The players will stick together," Miller said as he started polling the 21 player representatives by phone to get their reaction on the owners' offer Monday of a token increase in the pension fund of $200,000 less than $20,000 a club.

Miller said he would have no statement until today on the results of his poll but said, "There's no question the offer will be overwhelmingly rejected."

When the owners rejected an offer of arbitration Monday and countered with an offer to increase the yearly pension contribution from $5.1 million to $5.3 million (it's now at $4.1 million), their strategy became clear.

With spring training opening this week, the owners feel they can outlast the players and force them to accept the present offer and start playing.

On the other hand, if the players stand together and refuse to play as the start of the season approaches, the owners may be forced to make a better offer.

It's a power struggle between the two sides and the lines have been defined.

Miller remains confident the players will hold out. Commenting on reports of some general managers that they have many players signed and ready to play, Miller said, "It's the general managers' job to defeat the players."

Although no meetings between the two sides have been scheduled yet, Miller said he "will be back in touch" with the owners after he finishes his poll of the player representatives.

Only two teams, the Chicago White Sox and the New York Yankees, have opened their spring training camps. Neither team has had a veteran regular player report. Each club has had two fringe players trying to make the club—Dan Osinski and Russ Nixon of the Sox and Don Nottbart and John Orsino of the Yankees—reported but none of the frontline pitchers and catchers have showed up.

But the management is applying the pressure. Yankee manager Ralph Houk pointed out Tuesday that some of the rookies who've reported could take away the jobs of the benchwarmers last year.

Yankee President Mike Burke, saying a shutdown of baseball is "improbable but not impossible," claimed that "the only person without a stake in this is Marvin Miller. He can always go to another union but the players and the owners, where can they go?"

In San Diego, two players, Bill McCool and Dick Kelley, have refused to report to a players' meeting scheduled Thursday on Miller's advice.

President Buzzy Bavasi said the move would result in a slace of their contracts.

"It's the first time in 28 years of baseball that a player has refused to keep his word with me," Bavasi said. "I had sent both of them contracts calling for raises, but they can forget about them now."

A third player, Jim Williams, told Bavasi he wouldn't attend but Bavasi said if he didn't, he could report to Elmira. Williams then said he would attend.

Seven more clubs, the Mets in St. Petersburg, the Orioles in Miami, the A's in Mesa, Ariz., the Braves and Expos in West Palm Beach, the Cubs in Scottsdale, Ariz., and the Pirates in Bradenton, open their camps today.

Both the owners and the player representatives will be watching these camps closely to see if there is any crack in the solidarity of the veterans in refusing to report.

It won't be a formal strike until March 1 because that's the date when all players are formally required to sign contracts and report for duty although it's traditional for the pitchers and catchers to report early.

Yanks open camp with 10 players

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI)—Only 10 of the 27 pitchers and catchers who were scheduled to report to the New York Yankees' first spring workout showed up Tuesday.

None of the 10 players were Yankee veterans but Manager Ralph Houk pointed out that some of the rookies could beat out the fringe veterans who haven't reported because of the dispute with the owners over the funding of the pension plan. Seven of the 10 players are on the Yankee roster and three are non-roster players trying to win spots.

Only two of the players who reported, Don Nottbart and John Orsino, have had more than a year of major league experience but neither was in the majors last season and both are trying to win a job with the Yanks. Veterans like Mel Stottlemyre, Stan Bahnsen, Fritz Peterson, Al Downing, Mike Koldich, Lindy McDaniel, Steve Hamilton and Jake Gibbs all boycotted the camp.

The only other club now conducting spring training is the Chicago White Sox and the only two veterans who are working out with them are two fringe players—Dan Osinski and Russ Nixon—who are trying to lengthen their careers. The six

Nets pick Alcindor in secret ABA draft

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (UPI)—All-America Lew Alcindor of UCLA has been chosen by the New York Nets in a secret American Basketball Association draft, a source close to the ABA league office said Tuesday.

A league official, asked if he could confirm the report, said, "George (Mikan, ABA commissioner) is out of town and I can't say anything until he returns."

"We'll have a statement on the matter as soon as possible after contacting him."

According to the report, a secret telephone draft was held Saturday with each club taking two players. The teams made their picks in reverse order of the standings.

New York and Houston, last-place teams respectively in the ABA's Eastern and Western Divisions, flipped a coin for first choice. New York won and took the 7-1 inch Alcindor, the source said. Last year the ABA held a four-round secret draft before its regularly-scheduled player selection.

There also has been a report of long standing that the league may assess each club to come up with Alcindor's asking price, said to be $1 million or more.

The center from UCLA, has indicated he would prefer to play in New York.

pitchers who showed up at the Yankee camp were Nottbart, Bill Burbach, Alan Closter, Jim Fink, Mickey Scott and George Bechtold. The catchers were Orsino, Charley Sands, John Ellis and Thurman Munson.

Houk said the main danger is that the pitchers will get too far behind and won't be ready to go nine innings by the time the season starts.

"The pitchers need work to build themselves up and they could hurt themselves if they rush conditioning once they do get started," Houk said.

He added that he "couldn't envision a season without baseball."

Yankee President Mike Burke said it's "improbable but not impossible that the clubs could shut down this year."

Burke added, "The only one without a stake in this is Marvin Miller (executive director of the players association). He can always go to another union but the players and owners, where will they be?"

Celts end short skid, 116-110

BOSTON (UPI)—The Boston Celtics broke a two-game losing streak by fighting off a series of Phoenix comebacks in the late stages Tuesday to score a 116-110 victory over the Suns.

John Havlicek got 20 points, Sam Jones 19 and Tom Sanders 17 to pace the Boston attack that built leads of up to 17 points in the first half but faded badly in the late stages as the Suns scored 40 points in 49 tries at the foul line.

Gail Goodrich, who got 15 points in 18 free throws, paced the Phoenix bid which twice cut Boston's lead to four points in the second half.

Goodrich wound up with a game high of 29 points while Dick Van Arsdale netted 22 and Bob Warlick 17.

The afternoon game at Boston Garden was Boston's seventh win in the past 18 games.

Bailey first Expos vet to report

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (UPI)—Bob Bailey, who hit .227 in 105 games for the Los Angeles Dodgers last season, Tuesday became the first player who's expected to be a regular this season to report for spring training.

Bailey, drafted by the Montreal Expos from the Dodgers last October and slated by Manager Gene Mauch to be the Expo cleanup hitter against left-handers, showed up in the Expo training camp a week early and started working out on his own.

The pitchers and catchers aren't due to report to the Expos camp until today and the hitters aren't due for another week. But Bailey decided to show up on his own.

The only other player in camp is pitcher Dan McGinn, who appeared in 14 games for the Reds last season and had an 0-1 record and a 5.25 ERA.

The Expos had been expecting 11 pitchers and catchers.

Chicago Bears' running back Gale Sayers goes through his daily knee strengthening routine at a Chicago YMCA by pushing up 200 pounds. He performs the routine 25 times daily. Sayers had the ligaments in his right knee torn during game with the San Francisco 49ers. Bears' physician Theodore Fox performed corrective surgery the same night. Sayers has vowed to return to action this season as good as ever. (UPI Telephoto)

Geoffrion given additional rest

NEW YORK (UPI)—The New York Rangers decided Tuesday to give ailing Coach Bernie "Boom Boom" Geoffrion an additional rest from the rigors of handling the team and retain General Manager Emile Francis as interim coach for the remainder of the National Hockey League season.

A Ranger spokesman said doctors advised that Geoffrion should not return to the coaching bench because the pressure might invite the same sort of collapse that felled him last month after a game at Oakland, Calif.

Geoffrion, who has been bothered by a stomach ailment while a player for the Rangers and during his first year of coaching, returned to New York from Florida Monday to visit his doctor.

The doctor's report noted that Geoffrion has shown marked physical improvement but is still not ready to return to coaching.

Francis, who took over the coaching duties after Geoffrion's collapse, said Geoffrion would continue to work very closely with the club in other capacities less demanding than coaching.

"I have several special scouting assignments and other important tasks for him to perform," said Francis.

Since Francis replaced Geoffrion the Rangers have climbed from last place in the Eastern Division to third.

Prime rate rumor inhibits

Market money tight

NEW YORK (UPI) — Wall Street suffered another attack of the tight money jitters Tuesday and stocks absorbed their second successive shellacking in heavy turnover.

A major headache to traders was the persistent rumor that the nation's banks again may push up their prime rate which now stands at an historic high of 7 percent following three boosts since early December.

The possibility that the tax surcharge may be extended beyond its June 30 expiration date also was a depressant, as it was during Monday's sharp selloff.

Other developments which had a hand in the battering included the latest upheaval in West Germany over the forthcoming presidential election and the deadlock at the Vietnam conference in Paris. The peace negotiators are scheduled to resume talks Thursday amid indications the Communnists may be about to launch a major offensive in Da Nang. South Vietnam's second largest city.

Autos were among the few issues to escape the drubbing. Oils, electronics and steels, which were swept downward in the previous session, again were in full retreat.

Steels ranged to more than 2 lower despite the seventh consecutive weekly spurt in steel production. Building materials were similarly lower although housing starts in January hit the best level since February, 1964.

The UPI stock market indicator, measuring all stocks traded, showed a loss of 1.43 on 1,584 issues crossing the tape. Declines held a 1,218 to 210 bulge over advances. There were 52 new lows and 1 new high.

The New York Stock Exchange index mirrored a loss of 57 cents in the average common share price. Dow Jones average of 30 blue chip industrials fell 6.90 to 930.82. DJ rails and utilities also softened.

Volume swelled to 12,490,000

Met-Ed changes Portland power plant superintendent

PORTLAND — Metropolitan Edison Company's vice president — engineering, R. E. Neidig, has announced that John L. C. Bachofer, Jr., 38, Station Superintendent at Met-Ed's Portland Generating Station since June, 1963, will transfer to production supervision in the company's Reading headquarters office on March 1.

Neidig also announced the appointment of Hugh E. Bodden, 46, to succeed Bachofer as Superintendent of Portland Station. Bodden has been Superintendent of Titus Generating Station, Reading, since August, 1966.

Neidig said that Bachofer will assume the position of senior engineer. Initially, he will represent Met-Ed in the design and engineering efforts for which the company is responsible with respect to the Susquehanna River south of Middletown.

Native of Reading
Bachofer, a native of Reading and a 1948 graduate of Reading Senior High School, received a Bachelor of Science degree in Mechanical Engineering from Lehigh University in June, 1952. The following month, he joined Met-Ed as a Mechanical Engineer — Cadet. He was promoted to Mechanical Engineer — Junior in 1954.

Bachofer was named Technical Engineer at Portland Station in June, 1956, and held that position until he became Station Superintendent.

He is a registered professional engineer in Pennsylvania and holds membership in the National Society of Professional Engineers and in the Pennsylvania Society of Professional Engineers. Also, he is an associate member of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers and a senior member of the Instrument Society of America.

Bachofer, a member of St. John's Lutheran Church, Stroudsburg, is a past president of its church council and is a member of the Lutheran Layman's Movement.

He and his wife, the former Mary Lucena, have one child, John L. C. III, 13.

Problems may ruin good salary

DETROIT (AP) — Fred M. Wilson Jr. has a steady job at the highest pay he has ever earned. But will he stay put?

The story of Fred Wilson—29, a Negro, trying to hold down a job 95 miles from his family, lectured by his boss about absenteeism—capsules many of the problems that confront the national effort to find good jobs for the hard-core unemployed.

Wilson is the 5,000th person hired by the Ford Motor Co. in a job program for the poor. He went to work for Ford last October.

He likes his $150-a-week job as a press operator but isn't sure he'll stay.

In one breath, he says, "I plan to stay." In the next, he mentions letters to his wife and children 95 miles away in Saginaw, Mich., "telling them I ain't too sure I'm going to stay here."

According to foreman Frank Andros and other Ford management people, Wilson's only problem is attendance. He frequently has skipped work, sometimes calling in to say he was ill and other times just staying away.

Absenteeism has resulted in the firing of hundreds of hard-core unemployed who were hired under the special program officials say. Andros says he has spoken with Wilson about the absenteeism and given him "a little fatherly advice."

Wilson didn't report for work one day this week, one last week and two the week before. Asked why, he said, "Sometimes I'd be sick or something, and sometimes I guess I'd just get that old 'not too much interest in the job' feeling."

Wilson lives in a rundown apartment building in the inner city, where his $15-a-week room is lighted by two bare bulbs in a ceiling fixture. Stuffing falls from the mattress on his bed and the paint peels from the walls in thin layers.

"I go out to work and come back here and sit here and look at the walls..." he said.

His 20-year-old wife, Rosemary, and his two sons, Freddy, 3, and Clinton, 2, live with her parents in Saginaw. He sends them $20 to $30 a week of his $124-a-week take-home pay.

He said, "I'd rather live in Saginaw," where his parents are and where he went to school. He said he had only one steady friend in Detroit. Wilson added that Rosemary doesn't "really want to live in Detroit. I'm really not too sure either."

He hasn't visited his wife and children since Christmas, when he took presents of clothes for his children, a watch for Rosemary, and spent four days with his family.

After 11 years of holding dozens of low-paying jobs, often with weeks and months between one job and the next, Wilson walked into one of Ford's two inner city hiring centers last October.

He was put on the company's payroll as a production worker in the Rouge plant. Within five weeks he had demonstrated skill at learning new kinds of work and was given a 10-cent hourly raise—boosting his wages to $3.75 an hour or about $150 a week—as a press operator.

Discerning boss

PUEBLA, Mexico (AP) — Puebla's motorcycle cops have been ordered to dismount and carry on, on foot. Police Capt. Mario Morel Morales said: "It is impossible for motorcycle police to buy their vehicles and keep them up with the salaries they earn."

Heads buried

SALVADOR, Brazil (AP) — The heads of Lampiao and his girl friend Maria Bonita-Brazil's Bonnie and Clyde—have been buried here after being on display in a local museum 30 years. Lampiao led a notorious bandit gang in the 1930's. He and Maria were gunned down by a posse. Their heads, taken back as proof they were killed, were ordered buried after protests the exhibit was macabre.

Your Horoscope By Francis Drake

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — You may feel somewhat lethargic now, but if you have definite tasks and projects to finish, keep striving. You CAN accomplish!

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — The less said about another's errors, the better. Instead, assist everyone in improving ways and means and ALL will benefit — including yourself.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — You have advantages over others in certain respects, and they owe you in others. Capitalize on your talents and maneuver situations adroitly. Good opportunities indicated.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — A fair and accurate survey of all programs will prove rewarding. Direct your overflow efforts toward endeavors that work FOR you. Good prospects!

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — It may take longer than usual to put across a point or a suggestion, but you can still get much accomplished and make a good impression. Generous influences!

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — How you accept vicissitudes AND advantages will make the difference between just getting by and doing well. This day has the makings of a big success story. Build for the future!

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Think carefully before making agreements or new moves, but be ready to make quick decisions when necessary. There are so many ways to attain that you may daily too long just LOOKING.

October 24 to November 23 (Scorpio) — Don't scatter energies early in the day then regret being "too tired" when the bigger, brighter offers arrive later. Press forward with soundly progressive plans.

November 24 to December 23 (Sagittarius) — Many small matters may conspire to try to keep you from accomplishing what you set out to do — and must. Be firm! Direct energies to the areas where they will do the most good.

December 24 to January 23 (Capricorn) — Splendid prospects! But others also have such fine opportunities to achieve that you may find it difficult to put over YOUR ideas. Don't worry! This makes for healthy competition.

January 24 to February 23 (Aquarius) — A fine outlook for those of you who make the most of your talents and make good use of favorable circumstances. Presume a fair share of success, work for it, and you will have it.

February 24 to March 23 (Pisces) — You should win top-grade returns for your efforts now. Adhere to well-tested procedure. Emphasize your individualism, charm and perceptiveness.

YOU BORN TODAY are active mentally, and usually physically too; normally strive for idealistic aims. You can become excellent journalists, helpful companions, lively hosts, intelligent travelers, orderly home-makers. You get along easily with both sexes; learn rapidly; grasp essentials quickly; can eliminate unnecessary details. The well-developed Piscean gives out warmth, enlightenment, reality sophistication, artistry. Birthdate of Joseph Jefferson, actor; Mary Garden, singer.

Your tax problems

"Your Tax Problems" is published as a public service and is prepared by the Philadelphia District Office of the Internal Revenue Service. Send queries to the Internal Revenue Service, Public Information Officer, P.O. Box 12806, Philadelphia, Pa. 19108. For personal replies give name and address.

Q. Who can file the short form, 1040A?

A. This form can be used in the following circumstances:

1— income is under $10,000; and

2— income consists entirely of wages subject to withholding and not more than $200 from other wages, dividends and interest.

The Form 1040A cannot be used by taxpayers who either itemize their deductions or who claim special tax credits or deductions such as the retirement income credit, sick pay exclusion, or moving expense deduction.

Further details on filing requirements are given in the instructions that accompany both the 1040 and 1040A tax forms.

Q. My niece is now living with me after graduating from college. Will this entitle me to use the head of household rates when I file my tax return?

A. Unless you are also entitled to claim your niece as a dependent, the fact that you maintained a household for her does not meet the law's requirements for using the head of household tax rates. The 1040 instruction booklet has more details on this provision of the law.

Q. I understand that the first $100 in dividends is not taxable. Does that mean I don't have to list that on my return?

A. All dividends received should be reported on your return, Page 2 of Form 1040 has a line where you may take the exclusion you refer to. Note that this is $100 for dividends of qualifying domestic corporations. On joint returns where both husband and wife receive dividends, each may exclude up to $100 of such dividends.

Q. What is the purpose of the gas tax tables in the 1040 instructions? I thought you could just deduct 10 cents a mile for use of your car.

A. The tax tables provide a convenient method taxpayers can use to determine how much they can deduct for state gasoline tax for the personal use of a car. The 10 cents per mile figure you mentioned only applies to the business use of a car.

Q. I received 100 shares of stock in 1960 with a value of $575.00 as a gift. Present value is about $3,000.00. If I would sell, do I pay tax on the full amount realized or nothing since it was a gift?

A. The receipt of the gift, of course, did not give rise to taxable income. However, any profit realized on the sale of this stock would be taxable. It may qualify for capital gains treatment. To compute your gain you would have to know the adjusted basis of the stock to the donor, the fair market value of the stock at the time of the gift and the amount of gift tax paid.

Q. My company paid my salary while I was recovering from a serious operation in the hospital last year. Can you tell me whether I have to pay tax on my pay for that time?

A. It depends on how much you received in pay for the time you were out. If your company paid you over 75 percent of your regular salary while you were sick then there is a 30-day waiting period before any of your pay may be excluded from income. After the 30-day period, you may exclude up to $100 a week from your income as sick pay.

If you received 75 percent or less of your regular pay, you will have no waiting period. Then you may exclude up to $75 a week. After 30 days, you may exclude up to $100 a week as sick pay. If you had not been hospitalized, you would have a seven-day waiting period.

This provision of the law is explained at greater length in the 1040 instructions so be sure to check them.

Q. I sold my house just before my 65th birthday. Does that mean I won't be entitled to the special benefits for the elderly on those sales?

A. The law requires you to be 65 or over before the date of sale or exchange to qualify for these special benefits.

Q. I was married last month. Since my name has changed do I have to change my social security number?

A. When your name changes, notify your local office of the social security administration as soon as possible. Your number will not be changed, but your record will be corrected to reflect your married name.

Q. I recently received a notice that I owed additional tax on my 1967 return. This is because I didn't file an estimated tax return. I'm retired and receive a taxable pension, but I always file and pay by April 15. Could you explain this?

A. The tax law provides that anyone who has income not subject to withholding and whose estimated tax liability at the end of the year will be $10.00 or more, is required to file and pay an estimated income tax. This is accomplished by filing a Form 1040-ES. Payments may be made quarterly. Since you have income (pension) on which there is no withholding tax, you would be required to file an estimated tax return.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 4 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 4, add 4. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Wood's aide to visit area

STROUDSBURG — Sen. T. Newell Wood's field representative, William C. Lukie, will be in the Monroe County courthouse Wednesday between 9:30 and 11:30 a.m. to meet with residents of the 20th Senatorial District.

The senator urges all residents who have matters on the state level to avail themselves of this opportunity to expedite action. The county commissioners have provided facilities on the first floor of the courthouse for the senator's representative to meet with area residents.

Palace on view

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — The sumptuous 300-year-old palace where deposed President Sukarno used to spend his summers will be opened to the public soon as a tourist attraction, the government announced. The palace is in Bogor, 40 miles south of Jakarta.

Jack O'Brian's

New York's Voice of Broadway

NEW YORK — Woody Allen's "Play It Again, Sam" at the Broadhurst Theatre is 10 times funnier than Woody's "Don't Drink the Water," which ran a year on Broadway — It's jammed with jokes, big valid guffaws based on the very real truth of Woody's own retro-active fears of marriage, sex, movie-fun-fantasies, lots of lovely mini-skirted girls and a surprisingly consistent performance by the ugly-drunkling who fashioned this shenanigan — The jokes are there and the actors are up to them, including a riotously silly notion of having Humphrey Bogart return as Woody's amoral devilfather urging him on to racier sexual conquests, all of which he flunks — Jerry Lacy carbons the Bogart role well, Anthony Roberts plays his best friend and dearest cuckold with sharply witty style, Diane Keaton did handily as the wife Woody seduces and nobly gives up right after she swears off him — It's a show full of laughter in a show-world of mostly ugly solemnity.

Oldtime hooper John W. Bubbles could use a lot of help from the stars who used his considerable talents along the television gab-show circuit — He's alone with clockwork nurses in a small L.A. flat.

Angie Dickinson's marriage to Burt Bacharach apparently turned her musical: she'll sing for the first time Feb. 27 with Dean Martin.

"Man in a Glass Booth" star Donald Pleasence dug his car out of an E. 62nd St. six-foot snowbank after the blizzard — and found a parking ticket attached — Peter Lawford signed with Bravo Records — One of the great pros of showbiz, Sol A. Schwartz, former studio boss of Columbia Pictures and president of RKO Theatres took one year off from the racetrack and now returns as veep in charge of 20th-Fox' overseas theatre operations, a big job for a gent to match it.

A deal's on to sell the N.Y. "Arthur" discoteq.
